Last year, the Six Shooter's Mounted Cowboy Shooting demonstration and the Draft Horse & Mule Association's pulling demonstration were big crowd pleasers. These exciting demonstrations will be returning in 2010, along with the Breed and Stallion demonstrations representing breeds from Friesians to Miniature Donkeys.

West Virginia-based trainers have submitted applications for the West Virginia Trainer's Challenge, a colt start competition. The trainers selected for the 2010 challenge are Bobby Knight, Dan Hull and Robert (Junior) McLaughlin, Jr. These trainers will have four and one half hours over three days to train a horse that has never been ridden in front of the audience and judges. In the finale Sunday afternoon, the trainers will have to ride their trained horse through an obstacle course.

The Extreme Cowboy Race™, as seen on RFD-TV, will challenge riders to navigate through 14 obstacles while being timed and judged on horsemanship. The event is sanctioned by the Extreme Cowboy Association. It is open to everyone. Riders may compete in youth, novice and pro divisions. In addition to prizes, winners of this competition will gain points towards the Extreme Cowboy Race™ World Championship.

Of course the heart of the Expo is the trade show. Vendors of all things equine, from t-shirts to horse trailers, will have displays of their goods and services. Horse breeders will also have displays in the Horse Pavilion to promote their clubs, stallions and farms. Through the support of the WVDA, all West Virginia-based breeders who want to have a horse and booth in the Horse Pavilion (including the stallion pavilion) will receive a discount.

Another highlight of the Expo is the Saturday Evening Showcase. The showcase will start with the Parade of Horses followed by a trick horse demonstration and a concert by country music group, Taylor Made.

Don't forget to bring your appetite to the Expo for the West Virginia Cowboy Cook-off – an outdoor beef grilling competition done in true cowboy fashion. Attendees of the Expo will be able to purchase sampling tickets to try the contestant's entrees.

For more details about the Expo, visit www.whorsexpo.com or call (800)682-1552.

WVDA Offers No Cost Lime Sampling

The West Virginia Department of Agriculture's (WVDA) Regulatory and Environmental Affairs Division (READ) wants the consumers in W.Va. to know they have an opportunity for free testing of lime, fertilizer, or seed products purchased in the state. The WVDA wants to ensure the consumers are purchasing a quality product that meets their needs and the label guarantee.

The READ regulatory officer in your district will sample any of the above products at no cost to you. After you have completed a soil analysis, and ordered your product, we can sample your lime, fertilizer, or seed on the farm after delivery, but before you spread the product. By order of Chapter 19 of the WV Code, a monetary penalty is assessed on lime and fertilizer violations. What does that mean to the consumer? That means when we sample your product, and it is found deficient, you receive the penalty paid by the company. The only catch, WVDA must collect the official sample, not the consumer. We cannot assess a penalty on a sample collected and sent to the WVDA by the consumer. We urge you to contact us for all your lime, fertilizer, and seed sampling needs.

If you have any questions or concerns about your lime, fertilizer, or seed, contact READ at 304-558-2227.

FFA Winter Leadership Conference Sets New Attendance Record

The 2010 FFA Winter Leadership Conference unveiled a new format for members – a split conference to accommodate more FFA members. This format allowed for a total of 475 members and guests to be on site for both conferences during the weekend of January 22-24.

The Conference kicked off with FFA members witnessed the kidnapping of the leaders Sheriff Katelyn Brogan and Mayor Nick Beaver from the town of Ford by the evil Little Sisters Eleanor Porter and Hillary Tinney. Town members Andrea Walker, Jada Hostutler and Kimmie Brooks were in total chaos without guidance from their kidnapped leaders. That's when a stranger, Scott Ash, rolled into town to gather a posse of FFA members to help find the kidnapped leaders and the missing leadership qualities within their own FFA chapters.

FFA members made wanted posters and started towards their goal of finding leadership. They attended training on Self-Image, Conflict Resolution, Identifying and Improving Strengths, and Responsibility.

Rhett Laubach from Oklahoma provided the keynote message to FFA members and also provided training for ag teachers during the conference to better train public speakers and grow activities within the chapters they advise. Members from West Virginia University's Collegiate FFA also taught FFA members life lessons through their "Learning to Live" presentation. Each night was topped off with a good old-fashioned western campfire and reflections – and in no time at all the Little Sisters were apprehended and leadership returned to the town of Ford.

The State FFA Officer Team taught members to "Saddle Up and take the Lead" at the 2010 Winter Leadership Conference. The state officers (l-r): Katelyn Brogan, Kimmie Brooks, Nick Beaver, Hillary Tinney, Jada Hostutler, Eleanor Porter, Andrea Walker and Scott Ash.
